London Fischer's practice includes insurance coverage and practice groups specializing in litigation affecting several industries and disciplines such as: construction and real estate, employment practices liability, municipal liability, property losses, directors and officers liability and products liability, to name a few. The firm's clients are diverse and include some of the world's largest corporations and well-known insurance groups from the United States, Asia and Europe.

With 60 attorneys and offices in New York City, New Jersey and California, the firm's expansion is welcomed. "The firm has enjoyed double-digit growth, which is expected to continue," London says.

London Fischer is home to four attorneys named to this year's New York Super Lawyers® list:

Bernard London is one of the founding partners of the firm. He specializes in strategic counseling, trials and appeals of complex insurance coverage disputes, professional liability and construction law in all courts. He has many reported decisions of importance to the insurance and construction industries from the highest court in New York State and the 2nd Circuit Federal Court of Appeals. London shares his knowledge and expertise by lecturing and writing about legal issues, and serving in government and charitable organizations. He has authored municipal laws and served as an American Arbitration Association panel arbitrator for the insurance, reinsurance and construction industries.

Clifford B. Aaron, partner, focuses on commercial litigation, insurance defense litigation, general liability, vicarious liability and specializes in products liability, including the representation of automobile and truck manufacturers, restraint system manufacturers and manufacturers of press brakes, power presses, turbines and heavy machinery. He is a frequent lecturer on trial practice and advocacy issues for the New York County Lawyers Association.

Brian A. Kalman, partner, handles trials, appeals and defense of cases involving products liability, construction accidents resulting in personal injury and property loss, construction defect claims, roadway design, municipal liability and general liability matters.

Anthony F. Tagliagambe, partner, handles and tries major cases involving products liability, construction accidents resulting in personal injury and property loss, construction defect claims, roadway design, medical malpractice, municipal liability and general liability matters. He is an active member of the Federation of Defense and Corporate Counsel and frequently lectures for various bar and defense associations on trial advocacy issues.

WITH A DEEP UNDERSTANDING OF THE CLIENTS' NEEDS AND GOALS, the attorneys at London Fischer LLP have proven their dedication to successful outcomes since the firm began nearly two decades ago. Attorneys at the firm share one common principle—a commitment to quality legal work.

"The work atmosphere is team-oriented and collegial, which promotes better results because lawyers are relaxed and supported both intellectually and emotionally by the other attorneys and employees of the firm," says founding partner Bernard London.
