LONDON FISCHER LLP WAS FOUNDED 20 YEARS AGO. THE PARTNERS saw the need for an insurance defense firm which operated with a small-firm personality and a sense of client urgency, while also maintaining a large-firm capability.

The partners have demonstrated these traits in their successful handling of the largest construction matters, environmental contaminations, insurance coverage and reinsurance disputes, professional liability disputes and products liability cases. The firm has represented clients in each of these major insurance concerns in high-profile matters that included the multidistrict environmental MTBE Petroleum industry cases, the Unicover reinsurance scandal, and the Pharmaceutical industry products exposure of silicon implant devices.

London Fischer has experienced strong but controlled growth throughout the past 20 years. As products liability partner Tony Tagliagambe puts it, "We have been most focused on our existing clients and urgently attending to their concerns. This has led to powerful growth coming from our long-term clients."

The firm's manpower has been controlled by promoting from within the organization. "We prefer to hire and train young associates in our methods and attitudes, and promote from inside the firm," says litigation partner Virginia Futterman. "This has resulted in very consistent, high-quality work."

London Fischer's ability to service national and international clients increased in 2000 with the opening of an office in Irvine, Calif. The location is convenient to the John Wayne International Airport and is an easy drive to the courts in San Diego, Los Angeles, Riverside and Orange counties. The California office is run by long time New York partner Rick Endres. "We have received tremendous support from our overseas and national clients who had been doing business with our New York and New Jersey practice groups," Endres says.

The firm's bottom line, which partner John Sparling points out, is success that breeds loyalty. "We don't lose cases, or clients," he says.
